Painting Portfolio

All of the digital scans included below are paintings either completed with no reference, or with a reference photograph alongside the painting. These are all representations of an artistic hobby I have enjoyed for many years, and started out learning oil-based painting from Bob Ross videos and classes.

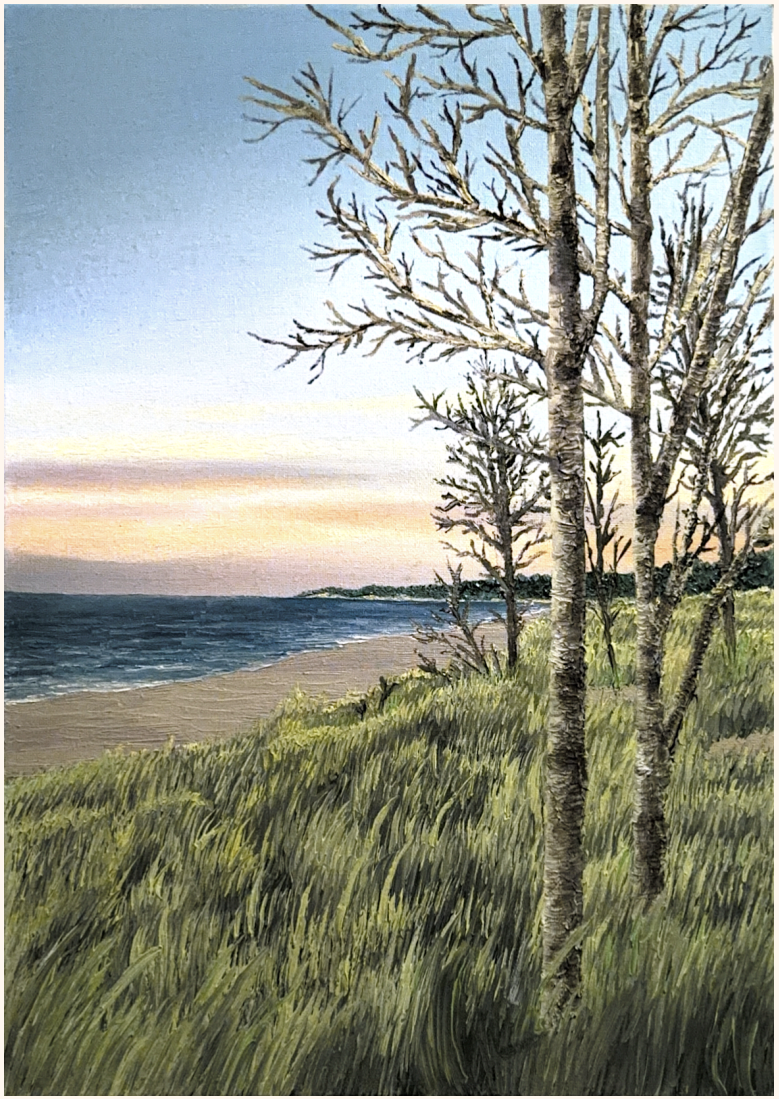

None of these were done for registered courses or grades, instead for pure enjoyment and seeing what new techniques I could learn or adjust to get different results.

There were limitations to all pieces, some were self-inflicted and others from equipment and space constraints, but I was eager to challenge myself to always do better than my last.

Some oil-based paintings, or acrylic mediums were not included–only my favorites!

Please enjoy!

The image to the left was taken in Pentwater, MI, and the painting was my first attempt at semi-realism based off of true landscape. Painting was completed March of 2025.

The image taken was on Torch River in Rapid City, MI, and was my second attempt at semi-realism based off of a true landscape. Painting was completed in July of 2025.

This painting was completed with no reference to landscape in mind, but was one of my favorites in terms of the color palette. Completed in 2020.

These are more examples of paintings I did with no reference, but with practice of different paint stroke techniques.
Completion of paintings unknown.
